5X1		without any difficulty witnessed poverty among the laborers and prosperity among the peasants, who evidently had made much money on the black market in the recent years of famine.
5X1		In Magreb,many houses in town were now peasant property. These nouses had not been expropriated, but were so heavily taxed that the owners, making no income, sold them to the peasants during the famine, sometimes for rood.
25X1X		The civil servants now get their
25X1		pensions (unless they have been recalled to service, which frequently is the case); the same applies to industrial employees, engineers, etc. Many from among the latter are new again employed, replacing the former incompetent Communists. Industry has been kept nationalized, but small trade is again permitted and artisens carry on their work. Several former landowners have recently been given back a part of their country houses, usually only several rooms in their former homes with small parts of their garden or land or vineyards. After years of famine and all kinds of suffering, these people have become very modest and now feel rather satisfied. Nobody owns a private car, and agriculture is not mechanized.

On the other hand, the fleet seems to be in good shape, probably because the old time naval officers have been kept in service all the time, and they continue to run the small Yugoslav Navy quite well.
	7.	Informer could ascertain that in the strongly Catholic provinces of Dalmatia, a great number of priests and nuns have survived the purge. The Church buildings have been kept up fairly well, and most of the destroyed churches have been rebuilt, with the exception of churches in the area between Knin and Carlowatz where during the heavy portisan fights, the churches had been burned down, and the priests killed. Here the churches have not been rebuilt, and no priests are to be found either. In Zagreb, they do not wish to stir up the case of Cardinal Stepinac,	25X1
